Siwa Safari Gardens

Siwa Safari Gardens comprises just 28 rooms, most of which are set around a pool formed from a natural spring. Each room is furnished in relaxing tones, designed to ensure you relax completely.

The beautiful domed restaurant serves Egyptian and European cuisine, and features a cosy log fire for winter nights, and a delightful tea garden for warm spring evenings.

Siwa is the northernmost of Egypt's five major oases of the famous Western Desert. 800 km from Cairo, 300 km south of the Mediterranean coast, Siwa offers the discerning traveller a unique experience. Among its ancient sites, legend tells that the Temple of Amoun housed an oracle, visited by Alexander the Great.

For centuries Siwa has been the home of a Berber community, a trading post for Bedouin and a stopping place for pilgrims on the long trek across North Africa to Arabia. In the 20th century Siwa was well known to the long range desert patrols of the German and British armies as they fought for supremacy of Egypt's sands.

Siwa is the northern gateway to the Great Sand Sea of the Sahara Desert, and the first staging post of desert safaris that extend south as far as the great Gifl on the border with Sudan.
